THIS COURT.

JUSTICE COURT.

Justice Barrett continued the three civil cases set in his court for yesterday.
Justice Walker took up most of the afternoon in the trial of state vs J. J. and H. H. Black. The suit was brought on the information of Miss Welton, and was an alleged disturbance of the peace. Miss Welton testified that she had rented a room of the defendant on South Main for a week, paying them in advance; at the end of the third day they threw her possessions into the street and insulted her when she sought to enter the room. The defendants, however, allege that they rented the room to her for only three days, and upon her refusal to give it up they cast out her things using no violence nor insulting language.
The evidence was not all in yesterday, and the case will most likely consume part of today.

POLICE COURT.

Lee Blanchard as a violator of the license ordinance turned into the city treasury, through officer Jay Marlette, a fine of twenty-nine dollars.
Louis Veach, a drunk, arrested by Officer Dan Parks, paid half of his fine and promised to sin no more.
Dolly Panta had been making her presence heard and felt in the neighborhood. She was arrested by Tom and helped to swell the city coffers by a contribution of $10.
